Bob Jones \underline{X} Perfect hand for a Responsive Double. Don't guess which major to bid – Double and let partner choose.

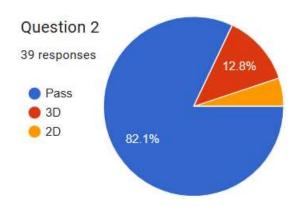

Steve Vogel X With 8 HCP and both majors, I cannot pass, which would communicate to partner that I am weak. I am, however, not strong enough for a 3♣ cuebid, which would show 10+ points and ask partner to pick a major. Rather than guessing which major to bid at the 2-level, a double by me should communicate this type of holding, also asking partner to pick a 4-card suit. Over a 2♦ response, I would bid 2♥ to show both majors. I plan to pass any 2-level major bid.

Joe Muenks 2♠ We're likely competing for a partial and we're definitely bidding a time or two, we'll bid the higher suit first. A responsive double applies when they raise the same suit, but I reserve that when I do not have 4 of the "other" major, here either major, so like this same 8 HCP arranged Kxx, Qxx, QJxxx, xx, announcing values but unsure of strain.

Bob Fisk \underline{X} Responsive double showing both majors and the values to take a call. This is about as weak as I'll be for this bid, but I have two Tens and tolerance (i.e., doubleton) for partner's suit. I rock.

Steve Moese \underline{X} The classic responsive double showing the majors. We have values to compete. Reserve the $3 \stackrel{\bullet}{\sim}$ cue bid for a hand that's an ace stronger.

Question 2 Q 2 − North-South vulnerable ★K ▼8 7 5 ◆Q 9 8 7 5 4 3 ★K 6 SOUTH WEST NORTH EAST ?

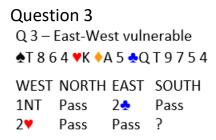

Bob Jones $2 \\left$ Pass, $2 \\left$, or $3 \\left$? Any could be right and you have to judge your market. Most often we would choose $2 \\left$.

Steve Vogel Pass Scattered honors and a poor 7-card suit do not add up to an unfavorable preempt. If the ♠K were instead the ♦K, that would be a different situation.

Joe Muenks Pass Vulnerable, with good heart support, I'll live to die another day. Perhaps partner will even open 1NT and our transfer system will land us in 3NT, or 3♦ if that is best.

Bob Fisk Pass Where do we start? 75% of my points outside of my long suit, three-card major which will make my hand a nice dummy if partner opens 1♥, unfavorable vulnerability. Ick.

Steve Moese Pass Don't even think about it. Unfavorable vulnerability is a poor time to try a speculative preempt in first seat unless you like -800+. The diamond suit looks more like a 4-card suit than a 7-card suit.

Bob Jones 3.2 An easy pass at rubber bridge, but you won't get many match-points defending at the two level. Bid 3.2.

Steve Vogel Pass This one is very close in matchpoints. I would not choose to make a bid in IMPs. The choices are whether to bid 3♣ or pass. If my ♥K were instead a small heart, I would bid 3♣. But with a wasted singleton King, I should now expect less from partner. I would choose to pass.

Joe Muenks Pass Whether you might double, the Garbage Stayman bid, the first time, hoping the ♥K is a key entry on defense is a good question. Asking whether to take them out of partner's 4-card suit when you hold the king and an outside ace feels icky since you may or may not go plus on defense but you sure can't go plus on offense at this point in the auction.

Bob Fisk

I'm not selling out to 2♥ at this vulnerability, despite the fact that partner is likely to have four Hearts. Partner is also likely to hold a doubleton spade, so let's give partner 2-4-4-3 shape. How about Jx xxxx KQxx Jxx? We lose two spade tricks (three if we don't get a ruff), one heart, and two clubs, down one or two. That's as weak as partner can be on the auction (17 to my left, seven to my right, and I have nine). Opposite that hand, the opponents lose no spades, no hearts, three diamonds, and no clubs (making four).

Steve Moese 3 Game forcing and natural. This hand is too good for a mere 2♠ invite. Partner sill know what to do. We will raise a spade rebid to game in that strain.

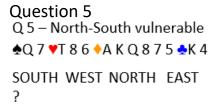

Bob Jones $\underline{2} \triangleq$ Forget about hearts. When the auction gets competitive, support if you can. Bid $2 \triangleq$.

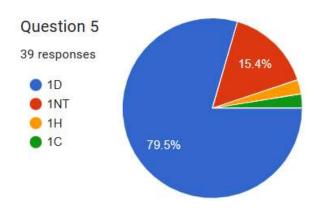

Steve Vogel 2♠ This hand is not quite worth a 3♣ cuebid.

Joe Muenks 2 Note that you are at a max for this bid and might even compete further depending on how the auction progresses, particularly if West raises East.

Bob Fisk 2♠ 100%? You'd bid 2♠ if that lunatic on your right hadn't bid, so you'll certainly bid 2♠ now.

Steve Moese 2 Support with support. Besides, shortness (clubs) in the short trump hand is an ASSET not a liability. Treat this hand as a constructive raise.

Bob Jones 1NT You cannot be faulted for opening 1, but many modern experts would open 1NT, showing 15-17. We like it!

Steve Vogel 1NT 1NT has a lot going for it with 6 expected diamond tricks and the likelihood of another trick on the side. Also, a 1NT opening has a decent preemptive value of keeping the opponents out of the auction. This is less likely when the opponents are not vulnerable, but still, I am not sure how to convey the strength of this hand if I would choose instead to open 1.

Joe Muenks $1 \\cup$ The archaeologists were looking for cavemen when they found one unwilling to upgrade their 6-card solid diamond suit due to 3 dead hearts and an unsupported queen. Grogg is going to open $1 \\cup$ and rebid 1NT over partner's major suit response.

Bob Fisk $\underline{1NT}$ If I open $1 \stackrel{\blacklozenge}{\bullet}$, and partner bids $1 \stackrel{\clubsuit}{\bullet}$, $2 \stackrel{\blacklozenge}{\bullet}$ isn't quite enough and $3 \stackrel{\blacklozenge}{\bullet}$ isn't quite not enough (i.e., it's an overbid). Unless you have a $2 \frac{1}{2} \stackrel{\blacklozenge}{\bullet}$ bid in your bidding box, open it 1NT.

Steve Moese 1 Resist the temptation to open 1NT. We would prefer partner to declare a NT contract.

Bob Jones Pass This is the kind of hand to consider overcalling on a four-card suit. It's OK to pass, but bidding 1♠ is also OK.

Steve Vogel Pass The top choices are to overcall 1♠ or to pass for now and await developments. My partners and I strive to balance, especially when not vulnerable, so I see no need to act now with a 4-card spade overcall.

Joe Muenks Pass You can throw a 1♠ in here and if partner raises to 2 win the jackpot; or perhaps partner will be on lead and make the best lead, but more often than you might think you'll be able to get a balance or prebalance in later showing both black suits, doubling the chances you find a good partial. BTW we hate xxx in an opponent's opened suit when trying to value a hand.

Bob Fisk 1♠ If you aren't overcalling 1M on hands such as this one, that's fine as long as you aren't my partner. If you are my partner, overcall 1♠. You really want to bid, and doubling makes no sense unless you like playing in 4-2 fits. Overcalling 1NT is ridiculous with only 13 HCP, although you would if you had 15 (i.e., pretend that 976 is a stopper). If partner is broke, then the opponents are going to be playing the hand anyway, and you'd like a spade lead.

Steve Moese 1 Overcall on a 4-card suit with a good suit (check) and a solid opening hand (check) that has the wrong shape for a takeout double (check). The vote is 3-0 for 1.
