Look for answers on Monday.

Bob Jones $1 \leftrightarrow$ The 5-card suit and the 2 working 10's make this hand too good for 1NT. Open 1 \diamond , intending to rebid 2NT.

Steve Vogel 1 This hand is worth 18+ points, 17HCP plus additional points for the good 5-card diamond suit as well as the 10's in the minors. Accordingly, I believe it is too strong for a 1NT opening. My plan is to open 1 with the expectation of rebidding 2NT over partner's expected 1-level response.

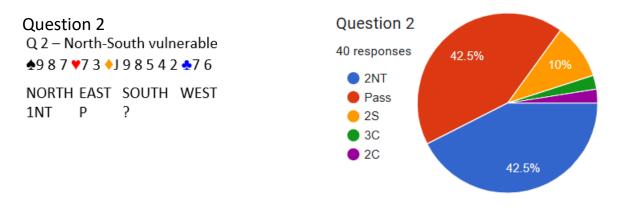

Joe Muenks 1 The T with the J and T in a good 5 card suit lead me to upgrade this hand as an 18 pointer, so I open 1 and bid 2NT next. Starting 1 means essentially forcing any 6 pt hand to game whereas opening 1NT is where you'll play it if partner has 6 or 7. This hand feels like one that will make many times when partner has fewer than 8.

Bob Fisk 1 rim going to rebid 2NT. While this hand is technically in the 15-17 range, it behaves more like a hand in the 18-19 HCP range. If you generate 20 7-HCP hands for partner, I'm willing to bet that 18.4 of them will have a strong chance to make 3NT opposite this hand. Let's make one randomly--Jxx Qxx Qxxx. Sweet.

Steve Moese 1 I treat this as an upgrade and will intend to rebid 2NT next. The online tool shows that this hand is closer to 19 than 17!! http://bridge.thomasoandrews.com/evaluator/#K85,K8,AK1075,KJ10

- 1 offers two advantages:
- 1) We have a clearer path to a diamond slam if right, and
- 2) We will bid making games and slams that others might miss.

Otto Walter $1 \leftrightarrow -$ Opening 1 diamond allows your to rebid 2NT showing 18-19 points. That gives partner a better picture of your hand.

Bob Jones 2NT This hand will probably play at least 3 tricks better in diamonds than in no trump. Use whatever method you have to sign off in diamonds. For us, it is 2NT – a transfer to diamonds.

Steve Vogel 2NT (Diamonds) This is a close call. We may be better off in a 1NT contract versus a 3-level diamond contract, but I believe the odds favor the higher level diamond contract, given my lack of help in all other suits. In imps, I might be more inclined to pass 1NT, and hope partner has a decent source of tricks.

Joe Muenks 2NT This is close to just pass and let partner struggle, but the opponents probably have a major partial they could find, so I'll play 3 (or partner will) and I assume we'll get 2 more tricks with diamonds trump than in no trump. Scary hand, though.

Bob Fisk 2NT (Diamonds). I play this as a transfer to Diamonds. If partner bids 3, I'll pass. If partner bids 3 (i.e., partner is allergic to Diamonds), I'll bid 3. Bridge is easy!

Steve Moese Pass 7 tricks will be hard, but 9 tricks will be even tougher. Since we have no way to stop in 2♦, I will pass and hope they reopen. The vulnerability stops me from transferring to 3♦.

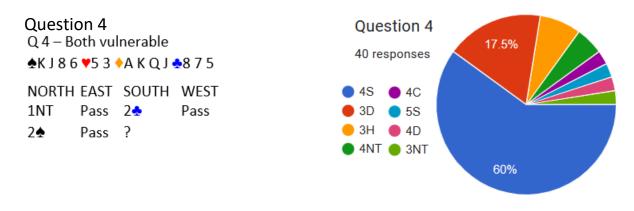

Bob Jones 2 Opening 1 in third position would not be a crime, but we prefer to ramp up the pressure and take advantage of the position and the vulnerability. Open 2 .

Steve Vogel $\underline{1}$ Third seat non-vulnerable, I definitely want to take the opportunity to get partner off to a heart lead if the opponents buy the contract, or we could end up buying the contract.

Joe Muenks Pass We love to stretch to open in 3rd seat and even 4th seat at times, but I'll be a little better than this to open myself like 11 HCP in a square hand or a rule of 20/22 hand or a rule of 15 hand with spades.

Bob Fisk 1 Light 3^{rd} -seat opener. I'd open 2 if you took away my $\diamond K$.

Steve Moese $\underline{1}^{\mathsf{rd}}$ 3rd seat this is a fine 1-level opening.

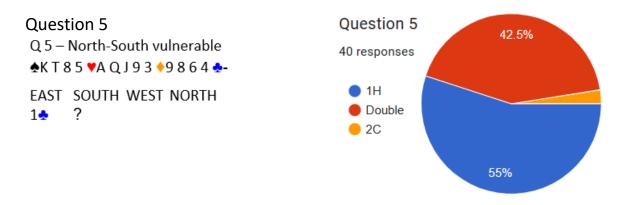

Bob Jones $4 \bigstar$ This hand is not quite worth a slam try. Just bid $4 \bigstar$.

Steve Vogel 4 Another close call. Based on the bidding (partner did not bid 2♥ over Stayman), I expect partner to have 4 spades, 2-3 hearts and, therefore, 6-7 cards in the minors. My 3 small clubs are a big liability, making slam unlikely. Yes, partner could have the perfect hand for slam, but if I invite (by bidding 3♥ in our system), we will get to an unmakeable slam too often. If I had the ♠Q instead of the Jack, I would invite slam.

Joe Muenks 5 You might play this differently with different partners, but you are on the cusp of slam points, your off suit is phenomenal but you cannot ask aces with 2 quick losers in even ONE suit, and we have 2 wretched suits, so we'll offer a general spade slam try and announce our 2 quick loser problem.

Bob Fisk 3 I play that a bid of three of the other major in an auction that begins 1NT-2, 22; 2M shows strong slam interest in partner's major (Baze). This allows the auction 1NT-2, 2M-4NT to be purely quantitative (i.e., I had the other major and around 16 HCP). It also allows the auction 1NT-2, 2M-4, to show strong slam interest in partner's major and a splinter in Clubs.

Steve Moese 4★ This is a great hand opposite 4 spade cards and partner could have just the right cards to make a small slam. But look closer. Give partner A752 AJ2 109 AKJ6 and slam still requires two finesses and a 3-2 trump break. That's well under 17% by my rough calculation. We need something like Q752 AK2 109 AKJ6 opposite and even that is at best 34%!! (68% trumps are 3-2 times 50% for the onside ♣Q).

Bob Jones 1 Bid 1. Should they persist in clubs, you can double at your next turn without showing extra values.

Steve Vogel X The big question is whether to overcall 1♥ or double (yet another close call). My heart suit is very strong, suggesting the overcall, but given my void, if partner has 4 spades, a 4-4 fit will tend to play better than a 5-3 fit where I may lose trump control. I would choose a takeout double (and hope partner does not pass with club length).

Joe Muenks 1 Double, burying your 5th heart will often work to find the best trump suit, but I'll see if partner has 3 hearts this round and if not I hope I can double next time to show support everywhere. Or if West declares spades or NT I've gotten partner off to a good lead.

Bob Fisk $\underline{1}$ I'll double at my next turn. Picture the auction continuing $(1 \stackrel{\bullet}{\bullet})$ -1 \forall -(2 $\stackrel{\bullet}{\bullet}$)-Pass; (Pass)-Double. If I double immediately, partner is going to bid 1 $\stackrel{\bullet}{\bullet}$ holding Qxx Kxx Kxxx xxx, and we'll get a bad matchpoint score.

Steve Moese $\underline{1}$ I prefer to show my 5-card Major when I can. Here I can rebid spades when appropriate. By the way, agree to allow partner to bid $1 \triangleq$ on 4 cards here as if they did not open the bidding (($1 \clubsuit$) - $1 \heartsuit$ - (P) - $1 \clubsuit$) and we never miss our 4-4 fit. Never. I strongly dislike Michaels here and discourage partners from bidding that way. Save that two-suited cuebid for 55+ shapes.

Bob Jones 2♥ Bid 2♥. Partner will bid 2♠ next if he has four of them.

Steve Vogel 2 Partner's 2 bid does not deny 4 spades, so I choose to rebid 2S over bidding 2NT (which in our system shows 6+ hearts). Over partner's expected 2NT or 3 rebid, I will bid 3♥ showing 4-6 shape in the majors.

Joe Muenks 2 With minimum hands with a 6 card major I like to open then rebid 2 of that major, like here. I do not deny 4 spades, so partner might bid those next.

Bob Fisk 2 During an auction, your job is to show partner as many of your cards as you can without cheating. If you simply rebid 2♥ here to show your sixth Heart, you've shown partner six cards. If you rebid 2♠ here, you've shown partner nine cards. Nine is more than six (I checked that on Wikipedia). If partner doesn't raise either major with their rebid, you'll bid 3♥.

Steve Moese $2 \pm$ We have an easy rebid here showing 9+ of our cards instead of only 6 of them. We can show our 6th heart next. 2S does not show extra values.
